VERBAL appeal and functionality inspiring at the Pavilion's design.

EDSA CENTRAL REBIRTH

Putting a new face to an enduring landmark

By Charles E. Bolen

THE OPENING of EDSA Central Shopping Complex in the '70s marked the beginning of a concept called "midway point" wherein travelers either going to work or back home could go some place halfway their destination to shop, dine or just relax.

Over since then, EDSA Central has become a people magnet, a fact that has contributed to the transformation of EDSA and Shaw Boulevard intersection into one of Metro Manila's busiest thoroughfares.

The area around the complex is no longer just a large patch of grassy land and few office buildings like it was many years ago.

These developments have happened:

- * New establishments have risen.
- * The intersection is now very busy because of the EDSA Metro Rail Transit.

- * The volume of people has risen exponentially in the last few years.

Because of these, Greenfield Development Corp., the property development firm that owns and manages the shopping complex has taken the bold step in providing a more modern and convenient commercial hub.

Today travelers, shoppers and bargain-hunters alike will be delighted to see that EDSA Central is now bigger and better to serve the ever-growing market.

Major transformation

This is EDSA Central's major transformation since it opened in the '70s. The 8-hectare property is being redeveloped through several phases among which is the major makeover of the main mall, the three-level New EDSA Central Pavilion and the improvement of the EDSA Central Station, formerly the MRT Station Mall.

As the primary focus of the initial phase of the redevelopment, the Pavilion will carry the banner of the whole commercial complex, a reason Greenfield tapped the services of one of the country's leading architects, WY Cascullich and Associates.

One of the major hurdles that the firm had to conquer in the main mall's makeover was how to make use of the existing structure to minimize what is as well as how to merge it seamlessly into the EDSA-Shaw station of the Metro Rail Transit now known as EDSA Central Station.

"As you know, it's always easier to plan from scratch, where ideas are more freely expressed. Having to do with plans with existing limitations are always considered difficult and a big challenge for an architect," shared principal architect William Cascullich.

Latest trend

The design concept throughout the Pavilion's close to 22,000-square-meter total floor area follows the latest trend in shopping center design wherein there is the balance between visual appeal and functionality.

"They must offer spaces that provide visual stimulation to people wherever level they may be located, impart new experiences to shoppers, and people must be able to conveniently navigate inside," explained Cascullich. The design must give equal concern for both tenants and shoppers.

Indeed, the new design provided the Pavilion a convenient interior so that people can see more store displays (even those located at the second and third levels). An entrance feature was constructed complete with water fountains, planters and benches to serve as a rest stop for busy and weary customers.

For effective customer traffic circulation, escalators were provided on both ends of the Pavilion.

On the second level, the Food Central occupies more than 3,000 sq m of space. It is dotted with fast-food restaurants and stalls to give visitors a pleasant dining experience.

"Those who prefer an alfresco setting can have their meal at the balcony that overlooks the entire EDSA Central or on the upper side, the whole stretch of the road spans at the lower level," revealed Cascullich.

Linkage to MRT station

The linkage to the MRT station was also given utmost consideration in the design of the EDSA Central Pavilion.

"The main mall's harmonization to the station (EDSA Central Station) must be seamless as we employed design patterns not too different to the MRT station's design," explained Cascullich.

Considering the tight space, curve lines were introduced in the interior space of the EDSA Central Pavilion, which provided the spacious look.

"The curved roof with specially designed trusses gave the interior the required grandeur; an airy, expansive, illuminated feel," shared Cascullich.

The continuous curved glass cladding on both sides helped provide brightness to the interior.

The air-conditioned structure was built with reinforced curved glass as windows and a curved ultra-high ceiling to give the mall fresh, expansive look.

THE NEW design provided the Pavilion a convenient interior.

FOR better traffic circulation, escalators were provided.

France says it won't bow to Iraq kidnappers over headscarf ban

16 killed in 2 bomb attacks in Afghanistan

PARIS (AP) — France's foreign minister said Thursday that his country would not bow to demands from Iraq kidnappers to lift a ban on headscarves in exchange for the release of French hostages.

The minister, Jean-Pierre Godeaux, said that France would not negotiate with the kidnappers, who are demanding the lifting of the ban on headscarves in Iraq.

France has been holding several French hostages since they were kidnapped in Iraq last month.

KABUL (AP) — Two powerful bombs exploded in a crowded market in Kabul, Afghanistan, on Thursday, killing 16 people and wounding dozens more.

The attacks occurred in the busy Wazir Akbar Khan market, a major shopping area in the capital.

Witnesses said the bombs were thrown by a group of men on motorcycles.

After delays, sevilla bridge opens today

By large sections of the bridge, the city of Sevilla has been able to open the bridge to traffic today. The bridge, which was closed for several days due to technical problems, is now open to traffic. The city officials are pleased with the outcome and hope that the bridge will serve the community well for many years to come.

Anti-online-drive gets its high gear

With the online drive getting its high gear, the city of Manila is now in a position to launch a major campaign against online driving. The city officials are determined to reduce the number of online drivers on the roads and improve traffic conditions. They are planning to launch a series of campaigns and programs to educate the public about the dangers of online driving.

What's eating you?

LISTEN, I can't tell whether you will or won't like (read) this material. I'm saying I think the River Run company makes the kind of good food, and will use only the same excellent materials, and every day will maintain the best in service and the kind, and will also spend liberally where you are financing the same quality, service, and the best and only.

The third article has been simply very positive about the situation, but then again, the world has no right to be different.

McPhee: I know nothing about making apollonization buttons, I know a good idea, I would like to see the apollonizing process
don't mention the apollon
and the buttons has really been a great idea.

Abstract: The authors examined the effects of a 10-week, 12-session, 120-min, group-based, self-help, and self-monitored intervention on the self-reported health status of 100 low-income, African American, elderly, and disabled individuals. The intervention was designed to help participants understand the importance of self-management, learn self-management skills, and develop a self-management plan. The intervention was evaluated using a pretest-posttest design. The results showed that the intervention had a significant positive effect on the self-reported health status of the participants. The authors concluded that the intervention was effective in improving the self-reported health status of the participants.

10. (10 points) Let $f: \mathbb{R} \rightarrow \mathbb{R}$ be a function satisfying $f(x+y) = f(x) + f(y)$ for all $x, y \in \mathbb{R}$. Suppose also that f is continuous at 0 . Prove that f is linear, i.e., $f(x) = cx$ for some constant $c \in \mathbb{R}$.

The American Medical Association (AMA) has announced that it will not support a bill to create a new federal agency to regulate the pharmaceutical industry. The AMA's position is based on its belief that the current regulatory system is sufficient and that a new agency would be redundant and costly. The AMA also expressed concerns about the potential for increased government intervention in the pharmaceutical market, which it believes could lead to higher costs for patients and reduced innovation. The AMA's stance is in line with its long-standing opposition to government control over the medical profession and the pharmaceutical industry.

Banish rainy-day blues

The awesome power of affirmation

When the weather turns gloomy, it's easy to feel down. But there's a way to banish those rainy-day blues.

Inside Out: [Name]

When the weather turns gloomy, it's easy to feel down. But there's a way to banish those rainy-day blues. The key is to focus on the things you can control. Instead of complaining about the weather, try to find something to be grateful for. Maybe it's the fact that you have a roof over your head, or that you have friends and family who care about you. When you focus on the good, the bad seems to disappear.

Another way to banish the blues is to get out there. Even if it's just for a short walk, getting outside can help you feel better. The fresh air and the change of scenery can do wonders for your mood. And if you're feeling really down, try to do something that makes you feel good. Maybe it's watching a funny movie, or listening to your favorite music. Whatever it is, do it and you'll feel better.

Remember, you have the power to banish those rainy-day blues. It's all about how you choose to look at things. So when the weather turns gloomy, don't let it get you down. Instead, focus on the good and you'll be on your way to feeling better.

When you're feeling down, it's easy to let the negative thoughts take over. But there's a way to banish those negative thoughts and replace them with positive ones.

The key is to use affirmations. Affirmations are positive statements that you repeat to yourself. They can help you change your mindset and see the world in a more positive light. For example, if you're feeling down because you're stressed, you could repeat the affirmation, "I am calm and in control of my life." Or if you're feeling down because you're lonely, you could repeat, "I am loved and supported by many people."

Another way to use affirmations is to write them down and read them every day. This can help you internalize the positive messages and make them a part of your daily life. So when you're feeling down, you can turn to your affirmations and find the strength you need to get back on your feet.

Remember, affirmations are a powerful tool for changing your mindset. So when you're feeling down, don't let the negative thoughts win. Instead, use affirmations to replace them with positive ones. You'll be amazed at how much better you feel when you do.

What's eating you?

Food and drink
 • A healthy diet is essential for good health. It should include a variety of fruits, vegetables, whole grains, and lean proteins. Avoid processed foods, sugary drinks, and excessive alcohol.
 • Exercise regularly to maintain a healthy weight and improve your overall health.
 • Get enough sleep to keep your body and mind functioning properly.
 • Manage stress through relaxation techniques like yoga, meditation, or deep breathing.

What you do
 • Stay active and engaged in your life. Find things you enjoy doing and make time for them.
 • Build strong relationships with friends and family. Social support is important for mental health.
 • Set realistic goals and work towards them. Achieving goals can give you a sense of accomplishment and purpose.
 • Practice self-care. Take time for yourself and do things that make you feel good.

EXERCISE OF THE WEEK

Low plank

The low plank is a great exercise for strengthening your core and improving your posture. It's also a low-impact exercise that can be done anywhere.

How to do it:
 1. Start on your hands and knees, with your wrists under your shoulders and your knees under your hips.
 2. Lift your hips and push your body up into a straight line from your head to your heels.
 3. Hold this position for 30 seconds to 1 minute, breathing steadily.

Benefits:
 • Strengthens the core muscles, including the abdominals, back, and shoulders.
 • Improves posture and balance.
 • Burns calories and helps with weight loss.
